

Programme Controller - Tim Evans

During the last year as programme controller I have been very grateful for the support given to me by other presenters.

During the Summer months many presenters took on covering other shows, this help us keep the continuity of Rookwood Sound presentation which at times was a struggle, Even the Chief did some which set a level for others as when the chips where down we all mucked in.

Christmas had several new presenters come on line and many did recorded shows over that time so thank you for that. Now they have shows of their and are doing well, the training paying off now more than ever. I have been informed that the new trainee presenters have started training and soon will be allocated programmes to assist on as part of their training so please give them encouragement, no bad habits please.

We had a all request day a few weeks ago that was arranged by Steve as I did not have the planning time so my thanks to him, I was still able to do my bit but that was all, so thank you Steve.

I have enjoyed my time as programme controller and have now stood down from the post as I think some one else should now have a go so they can have a new challenge and there are a few people I think could do it.
